Figure 8 shows the MWO maps of 13CO (2-1) in the two strongest components, which correspond approximately to the dominant radio recombination line velocities. Shaver et. al. (1982) and Leisawitz and Bash (1984) find evidence in several HII regions for velocities which are anomalous with respect to their galactic position, though the differences are generally an order of magnitude smaller than the On the other hand, the difference between velocity difference between G25. 4NW and G25. 4SE. I 1 the ionized gas velocity of 59 km-s-and the strong CO component at 65 km-s-for G25. 4SE IIII is not unusual. Israel (1978) has shown that such velocity differences between compact regions and their associated molecular clouds are common, and seen in many less obscured IIII regions. The less obscured regions are presumably on the near sides of their molecular clouds, and the ionized gas is...
