In a previous study ( Appendix C ), thermodynamic simulations were used to identify critical variables from a large number of components present during and subsequent to a LOCA event in the containment system. Computational thermodynamics simulation calculations were conducted using Environmental Simulation Program Version 6. 6 ( OLI Systems, Inc. , 2002a ) and StreamAnalyzer Version 1. 2 ( OLI Systems, Inc. , 2002b ). In the study, chemical speciation of plausible reaction products in sump water after a representative LOCA event was modeled to ( i ) determine the need for a pressurized test loop and ( ii ) assess whether gelatinous products could form in the typical time-temperature-pressure-chemistry-pH regime following a LOCA event. The corrosion rates were based on conservative values between pH 7 and pH 10 in borated water, selected from the values published in the literature. The sensitivity analysis was conducted over a wide range...
