The word maja has no exact equivalent in English or in any of the modern languages. Literally, it means bedecked, showy, gaudily attired, flashy, dazzling, etc., and it was applied at the end of the eighteenth century and at the beginning of the nineteenth to a certain class of gay women of the lower strata of Madrid society notorious for their love of dancing and their fondness for exhibiting themselves conspicuously at bull-fights and all popular celebrations. The great ladies of the aristocracy affected the free ways and imitated the picturesque dress of the maja; Goya made this type the central figure of many of his genre paintings, and the dramatist Ramon de la Cruz based most of his sainetes - farcical pieces in one act - upon the customs and rivalries of these women. The dress invented by...
